

Group review of papers

Abstract

- “Author offers a concise summary of Tibetan Writing System...”
 - “Author explains that Catalan belongs in the family of Romance languages.”
 - “Kim observed and analyzed a native speaker of the Catalan language”
 - “Lennard explains the features of the Tibetan writing system in the three sections.”

【It's suitable for review, instead of abstract.

An abstract is written in either first person narratives or third person narratives– “this paper”.

Normally, an abstract should not include the author's name, unless you're citing previous work. 】

Abstract

- “Spirantization is a specific form of lenition which occurs throughout the languages of the Iberian peninsula. This paper will focus on its occurrence in Catalan, the language of the Catalonian regions of Spain. A native speaker was consulted for data collection and other assistance in this project.”